

10 TIPS FOR INTEGRATING ASSESSMENT RESULTS INTO CAREER CONVERSATIONS

- 1. Choose wisely. Think ahead to the goals for your career conversation (e.g., planning next steps, finding balance, solving a performance issue, choosing between various options). Each assessment tool is designed for a different purpose - choose relevant tools that are complementary.
- 2. Prepare. Allow sufficient time before your meeting to read the assessment reports, supporting documentation (e.g., technical manuals), client/employee files, and other relevant information.
- 3. Integrate. Make sense of assessment results by looking at them holistically. Consider assessment goals, contextual information, and themes or contradictions across the individual reports. Use post-its to identify key points and organize into themes; make notes or highlight key points on assessment reports or profiles.
- 4. Reflect. Consider the potential impact of the assessment results and/or your feedback. Ponder the most effective way to communicate key points (e.g., charts, examples, metaphors).
- 5. Focus the conversation. It's much more effective to interpret assessment results with a specific purpose in mind. However, avoid being so narrowly focused that you miss other relevant insights. For great resources to support career conversations, see: <http://www.crwg-gdrc.ca/crwg/index.php/resources/career-conversations>
- 6. Don't overinterpret. Most career assessment tools are self-assessments (i.e., the individual is providing information about him/herself) – they are not objective measures of a static reality.
- 7. Don't "test and tell." A conversation is two-way, not a presentation. Engage in dialogue about the assessment results and their career applications.
- 8. Establish "SMART" goals. Based on assessment results, ensure that the resulting goals are Specific, Measurable, Achievable, Relevant, and Timelined. Find more info on SMART goals at <http://www.yourcoach.be/en/coaching-tools/smart-goal-setting.php>
- 9. Identify action steps. Make immediate use of the assessment results. Identify steps to maximize identified strengths, enhance competencies where required, or enrich work experiences.
- 10. Facilitate appropriate sharing. In most circumstances, the individual "owns" the results of his or her assessments. However, it may be helpful to share the results with significant others (e.g., managers, supervisors, co-workers, instructors, mentors, or coaches). Leave time in the career conversation to explore who to share results with, which results to share, and how to communicate results most effectively.

imagine ♦ achieve ♦ excel

604.856.2386
info@lifestrategies.ca
www.lifestrategies.ca